Writing from Peking under date of the 27th Dec. a correspondent says: "The Chinese troops have recently made very considerable progress in the war in the North-west. Karahai fell into their hands on the 7th October, and they then crossed the Kaidir river and occupied Kurle, the place of Yaocob Khan's death. Near here (at Huger) they again defeated the Mahomedans in open battle, and on the 18th entered the important town Kueh. A Chinese general and several officers of rank met their deaths during these operations. The Mahomedan population, numbering about 100,000 then tendered their submission. The Chinese leader who has achieved these important successes, which have carried the Chinese army from Turfan to Yarkand and Kashgar, is the Taotai of Lining, Liu Chin Tang, a name that has already been frequently mentioned during the operations against Kashgar. The next place which the Chinese will have to attack is Aksu, an important city from which three military roads branch off to Ush in the West to Yarkand and Kashgar in the South-west and to Ill or Kulja (at present occupied by the Russians) in the North.

Peking, Dec. 27, 1877.

In my last I sent you some particulars respecting the war in the North-west. The struggle between the heir of the late Yaocob Khan and the Chinese is evidently now drawing to a speedy close. The Peking Gazette just published announces the capture by the Chinese of the two towns of Aksu and Ush. This event was, according to the account contained in the Gazette, preceded by a series of fights, lasting six days, between the Chinese troops, and the bands of Tai-yen-hoo, the Chinese Mahomedan leader, and of the successor of Yaocob Khan. A few thousand rebels, says the Gazette, were killed in these battles, and the number of Mahomedans who tendered their submission is enormous.

Without doubt the Chinese will now proceed from Aksu in a south-westerly direction towards Yarkand.

The weather has for the last fortnight been very cold, with northerly winds; no snow has fallen, large numbers of poor people are said to have arrived from the interior. Silver is very scarce and everything has risen considerably in price.

Tax following passengers are booked to Hongkong and China:—

For P. & O. steamer Ceylon, from Brindisi, Dec. 10.—To Hong Kong: Mr. Ryle, Mr. T. Pate.

For P. & O. steamer Khedive, from Southampton, Dec. 13.—To Shanghai: Mr. J. Green, To Hong Kong: Mr. Bandy, Mr. Pollock, Mr. A. G. Angier, Mr. W. P. Tezer.

For Messageries Maritimes steamer Yang Tze, from Marseilles, Dec. 16.—To Shanghai: Mr. R. Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Hemmings, and two children, Mr. Fourn. To Hong Kong: Major and Mrs. Brodigan.

For Messageries Maritimes steamer Amazone, from Marseilles, Jan. 13.—To Hong Kong: Mrs. Lord.

Latest Mail Advice.—Yokohama Oct. 28, Shanghai Oct. 26, Fochow Oct. 26, Hongkong Nov. 1. The P. and O. mail, from Yokohama, 19th, Shanghai 18th, Hongkong 25th Oct., Singapore 2nd Nov., was received, via Brindisi, on the 3rd inst.; and the French mail, via Marseilles, with a week's later dates, as tabulated above, came in on the 7th inst. (this day). No later Japan advices via San Francisco have reached London. The next inward (P. and O.) mail, which will bring dates, Yokohama 8th Oct., Shanghai 2nd, Hongkong 8th, Singapore 15th Nov., which is due, via Brindisi, on the 17th inst., left Galle on the 28th ult., one day early.

The members of the Chinese Commission for furnishing exhibits to the Paris Exhibition are expected shortly to arrive in Paris. The Commission consists of Mr. Hart, Inspector-General of Customs, President; Messrs. Glover, Dering, Bradon, J. H. Hart, J. D. Campbell and A. Novion, and the Count de Cambrenil as Secretary. Some of these gentlemen are at present in China and some in London. A large number of workmen are at present engaged in China constructing the Pavilion in which the articles are to be exhibited, and about a hundred of them will come over to erect it. The Japanese Mission for the Exhibition has, as we have already noticed, arrived in Paris. The head of the Commission is Mr. Meida, who is thoroughly European in education and habits.

It will be observed in our United States news that a duty of 10c. per lb. on tea and 2c. on coffee has been proposed by the President in his message to Congress. As usual in the States this has given rise to considerable speculation by those on "the inside track," but with regard to tea duty we have reason to believe that the new duty will not interfere with the consumption of that article in America.

The following appointments will probably be made, in consequence of the opening of new ports under the Chefoo Convention, and the re-establishment of Consulates at Ching Kiang, Tamsay, and Kungchow:—

James Mongon, Consul at Canton, vice Sir Brooke Robertson.

Chalmers Alabaster, Consul at Tientsin vice J. Mongon.

G. T. Gardner, Consul at Ningy, vice C. Alabaster.

Arthur R. Hewlett, Consul at Tamsay, vice W. King.

W. King, Consul at Ichang (New Port).

R. J. Forrest, Consul at Wenchow (New Port).

Thos. Watters, Consul at Wuhu (New Port).

Mr. W. M. Cooper, now Vice-Consul, will probably be made Consul at Kinkiang, and the examination for Student Interpreters will be notified next month. The posts connected with the Supreme Court, China and Japan, are not yet decided.

Major William J. Thompson, late 90th

Regiment, died last week, aged 42. He served in the China campaign of 1860 on the staff of Brigadier Reeves, and was present at Sihao, taking of Tangu, storm and capture of the Inner Taku fort (slightly wounded), actions of Sept. 19 and 21, and surrender of Peking (brevet of major, medal with two clasps).

Hamburg, Dec. 4.—Last week the first resident Minister from China was introduced to the Emperor for the presentation of his credentials. In his address to the Emperor the Minister dwelt strongly upon the fact that the relations between the two Empires since the treaty concluded by Count Eulenburg had been of the most friendly character. In making this statement the speaker must have conveniently lost sight of the difficulty regarding the German schooner Anna, and other instances might be cited as showing that the Chinese Government has not always given satisfaction or done justice although the German Ambassador has not invariably insisted upon his absolute rights. But doubtless it is far better to refrain from recriminations, in the hope that all the fair speeches made by Mr. Liu-Hsi-Hung are indications for the future. One sentence in the Minister's credentials is somewhat amusing; it runs thus:—"We know this well-deserving high officer many years since," a remarkably strange assertion when it is remembered that his Celestial Majesty is at present only five years of age.

CHINA AFFAIRS AT HOME.

(From our London Correspondent.)

LONDON, Dec. 7th 1877.

The memorial from the London Committee of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce to Earl Derby has at last been published, and sets forth very fairly the views which are generally entertained here with regard to that document, as well as supplementing the ideas of the Shanghai Chamber which were published some time back by them in the letter they addressed to their Representatives here. I am sorry to say that so far as I can judge there does not appear to be very much interest taken in the matter outside a narrow circle of those who are more immediately concerned. The fact is that mercantile men are tired of the affair. The weak point in the Convention is on the surface—namely that referring to the Zekin, and attention was at once directed to it when the terms of the Convention became known in China. It is unfortunately just one of those points which is trite to those acquainted with China affairs and incomprehensible to those who are not familiar with them—so that one set takes no interest from knowing too much of it and the other from knowing too little. To the man who knows something of the double system of revenue in China, the bribing of barrier officials, the double scales of duties in all directions and the manner in which all this is made to work into the hands of guilds and to establish monopolies, the attempt made in the Chefoo Convention is easily understood. But conceive the difficulty of explaining any one of these facts to the average British intellect, and you can form some idea of the dense crust through which it is necessary to penetrate before it can be possible to bring people to understand even the elementary bearings of the little game which the Chinese officials played off against Sir Thomas Wade. You will notice that the memorialist point out with considerable force that the idea of the Chinese is evidently simply to get Sir Thomas to accept the revised Alcock Convention in a new form. They desire an increase of import duties and knowing they cannot obtain it directly have set about it in a surreptitious manner. There can scarcely be any doubt, in my opinion, that if the Chefoo Convention be accepted as it stands, the next card the Chinese will play will be to declare that Lekin is not a transit due and is therefore not commutable under the transit dues clause; and if this be admitted, they can of course tax our trade both in opium and piece goods to any extent they may in their celestial wisdom think fit. It is to be hoped that the Government will not fall into so grave an error as accepting the arrangement proposed, but it is certainly to be feared that they will. It is certainly to be feared that they will. It is certainly to be feared that they will.

decided in favour of the plaintiffs. It has caused the greatest sensation not only in Manchester but also in London. In the former place I am told that the defendants are looked upon as being rather ill-treated; but I imagine that this opinion is confined to the "Trade" and is scarcely shared by the generality of the public. It will be sufficient to put commission agents on their guard and to make them a little more careful than hitherto of their constituents' interests. The old plan of "custom" was worn to rags in the course of the arguments, but Sir Geo. Jessel pointedly observed that there cannot be a custom to cheat if all Manchester came forward to testify to it. I was in the Court during a portion of the trial and heard the whole of the summing up and judgment. It was most lucid and was given in a satirical vein which of course could not be caught in the reports, but which displayed to the full the utterly irregular system or rather the total want of system in the Manchester Trade.

An announcement has appeared of an Imperial Chinese Loan of £1,600,000 to be secured on the Customs Revenues. It is stated that the Chinese intend making use of a great part of this money in the purchase of new armaments, &c. I doubt very much whether much is to be feared on this score, as after all what they could do even with all their new armaments would amount to very little against any European power. If a war occurred they would probably soon have a rebellion also to deal with, as was the case in 1896.

The Rev. Dr. Legge has been lecturing at Oxford before the Chinese Mission. I am told that Kwo expressed great interest in the University, and was quite astonished that the other barbarians had such extensive educational establishments.

Manila.

(Translated from Manila Papers.)

A ship's boat, manned by four English sailors belonging to the barque St. Charles, had disappeared a few days back, and search was instituted, resulting in the being found by the Harbour Master's boat in the bay of Baguio, coast of Zamboanga. The reason of their presence there is not yet known, and on the afternoon of the 4th Jan. they were seen in custody of two corporals, no doubt, to give the account of their perilous journey before the proper authorities.

Some of the streets of the town and suburbs were illuminated with kerosine from the 1st of January 1878.

There were neither importation nor exportation of gold and silver during the second fortnight of December last into these islands.

A register for the inscription of vessels to carry 20,400 quintales tobacco, from Manila, Cebu and Iloilo to Spain, was opened on the 9th January. The freight offered was 25 reales vellon per quintal for sailing vessels and 33 reales vellon for steamer. The register closes on the 14th January.

The duty collected in the Manila Customs during December last, amounted to $121,148.17, or $18,603.62 in excess of the sum collected during the same month in 1876.

ARRIVAL OF THE ENGLISH MAIL.

The P. & O. Co.'s steamer Mongolia, Captain Alfred Coleman, with the London mails of the 7th December, arrived here this morning.

(Straits Times Extra.)

London, Dec. 23.—Snowy weather is preventing military operations in Southern Bulgaria. The Servian troops have captured Babinogava, while other Servian troops have effected a junction with the Russians, and are advancing towards Widin.

The Russians have occupied Oltu, and are concentrating troops at Otzumahmed, near Erzeroum. The weather is intensely cold in Armenia.

London, Dec. 23.—The Servians have made an unsuccessful attack on Yatro, and were defeated and compelled to fall back with very heavy loss. The garrison of Nisch has made an unsuccessful attempt to retake the heights of Komane.

London, Dec. 24.—Suleman Pasha, having garrisoned the fortresses of the quadrilateral, is concentrating the remainder of his army at Adrianople. It is believed that the Porte has resolved to continue the war to the last extremity. The Czar, accompanied by Prince Gortchakoff, has arrived in Saint Petersburg, where his reception has been most enthusiastic. Advice from the seat of war in Armenia state that the Russians are investing Erzeroum. In the Paris Constitution of to-day there appears a statement that England will defend the existing treaties and the European equilibrium against Russian aggression, and that in so doing she will certainly have the moral support of France and Italy.

London, Dec. 25.—The Czar, replying to an address at St. Petersburg, said that much yet remained to be done, but that he hoped to accomplish the mission. The grand undertaker in the present war, the Russian Emperor, has received a visit from Indian Mussulmans.

London, Dec. 26.—The Viceroy of India is to be created a Civil Knight of the Grand Cross of the Bath. Servian troops, on the 24th instant, captured Alpalanka with trifling losses. The capture included a large quantity of war material. After severe fighting for eight hours, the Servians have crossed the river Morava and commenced bombarding Nisch. According to a Turkish official despatch, the Servians were defeated on the 22nd on the Morava river. The bridge at Ibrahim has been destroyed by ice, and repairs to it are not yet possible. A Turkish official despatch states that Russian cavalry have almost invested Erzeroum, and that bombardment of the fortress is imminent.

London, Dec. 27.—The Servians have captured Leskovats, on the river Morava, south of Nisch, and also Kursumliu, north-west of Leskovats.

A Russian official despatch states that the Turkish prisoners taken at Plovna are dying, owing to the intensely cold weather, and that assistance is impossible.

London, Dec. 28.—The Servian troops have effected a junction with the Russians, and are marching on Sophia.

It is semi-officially stated at Saint Petersburg that the opening of the English Parliament next month has encouraged the Porte to resistance, and will compel the Russians to march on Constantinople.

THE CHINESE MINISTER AT OXFORD.

On the 28th ult. the Chinese Minister, accompanied by Dr. Macartney and suite, paid a visit to Oxford. His Excellency was received at the station by the Rev. Dr. Legge, the Professor of Chinese. Having proceeded to the Randolph Hotel, they went on very shortly after to the Bodleian Library, over which they were conducted by the Librarian, the Rev. Mr. Cox. No room in the institution seemed to impress the Ambassador so much as that containing the maps of the Trigonometrical Survey. From the Bodleian the party went to New College, where his Excellency was courteously received by the Vice-Chancellor, and a large party had been invited to meet him at luncheon in the hall. Luncheon over, all proceeded to the Sheldonian Theatre, where a lecture from Dr. Legge, on the last four maxims of the King-hai Suoed Edict. He had discussed the previous portion during the last term, and said he was glad to bring his exhibition of the Edict to a close in the presence of his Excellency Kuo Sung-tao, the first Imperially-commissioned Ambassador to represent China at a foreign Court. It was not much he would be able to understand of their university and colleges on one flying visit, but they hoped he would come again, and by-and-by be able to write some distinct account of the highest educational system of Great Britain to his friends in Peking, and assure them that the universities of England would move than hear a comparison with their own Han-lin Yuan. After the lecture the Vice-Chancellor and the Professor of Chinese drove with the Ambassador and Dr. Macartney to the College of Magdalen, All Souls, and Christ Church. On Thursday his Excellency was present at the conferring of degrees in congregation, and visited two of the schools, where examinations were going on. The Vice-Chancellor then rode with him to see the Clarendon Press and the University Museum, where he was met by Professors Smith, Adair, Rolleston, Prestwich, and Westwood. The last institution he visited was the University Observatory, over which he was shown by Professor Fritschard. A good view was obtained through the great telescope of Venus, and he gave a shout of delight when he caught sight of the planet, and cried out that "it was like a ball in moon." At four o'clock he returned to London, expressing great delight with his visit, and a deep sense of the courtesy with which he had been received by the Vice-Chancellor and others.

THE DARREN CANAL SCHEME.

Some further particulars are given of the proposed canal across the Isthmus of Darrien to connect the Atlantic with the Pacific Ocean. The line advocated by M. de Lesseps, referred to in our issue of the 23rd ult., starting from the Pacific coast, ascends in the first place the river Tuira, as far as the island of Piriquae or Alligatora. From this point a straight cutting, 16,200 metres long, connects the Tuira with the Chocomaque, near the point where the Tuira flows into this latter river. The line ascends the Chocomaque for 14,400 metres; then, turning to the north-east, it continues up the valley of the Titi, to the point where, for reasons of economy, it would be preferable to make a tunnel rather than continue a deep cutting. This tunnel passes to the south of the Peak of Gandi, under the remarkable ridge from which on the one side an arm of the Tuira, the Tuira, and the Titi flow down towards the Pacific, and on the other the Tolo and the Aoniti to the Atlantic. On emerging the canal continues through an open cutting about ten kilometres long, down the valleys of the Aoniti and Tolo to the deep waters of Port Gandi. The probable length of the tunnel is estimated at between thirteen and fourteen kilometres, and the cost of making the whole canal, at £600,000,000. A surveying party, under the command of Lieutenant Wyse, of the French navy, the officer who commanded the expedition which made the preliminary survey last year, has sailed from St. Nazaire to complete the work then begun.

THE DOCTRINES OF MENCIUS.

(China Review.)

Eine Skizze der auf ethischer Grundlage oder Lehrgedicht des chinesischen Philosophen Mencius. Aus dem Urtexte überetzt, in systematische Ordnung gebracht und mit Anmerkungen und Einleitungen versehen. Von Ernst Faber, Missionar der Rheinischen Missionen-Gesellschaft. Elberfeld, 1877. London, Trübner & Co.

This new work of Mr. Faber is, as the title indicates, "a political creed on ethical basis, or a digest of the doctrines of the Chinese philosopher Mencius, reduced to systematic order and furnished with notes and introduction." The book is therefore by its general scope and plan parallel to the author's last publication "Lehrbuch des Confucius" (see China Review, Vol. I, p. 260) which was subsequently translated into English (by P. G. von Moellendorff) and published in 1875 under the title "A systematic digest of the doctrines of Confucius." There is, however, this difference between the two works on Confucius and Mencius, that the former was furnished with quotations from the Chinese texts and was altogether written for Sinologists. The present work, on Mencius, is but an abstract of an unpublished larger work, and the abstract here given, in German, is interspersed with practical observations, especially adapted to the peculiar wants of German readers unacquainted with the Chinese language.

But although the book before us is but the forerunner of a larger one for students of Chinese literature, it is nevertheless so full of interest for all who desire an insight into the inner workings of such a typical Chinese intellect as that of Mencius and so fascinating by its originality of thought and treatment, that we earnestly hope it will soon be made accessible to English readers in its present form. The best-read Sinologists will find much in this book to deepen their understanding of Mencius, much also to admire and much even to learn.

Mr. Faber's book, like everything that proceeded from his pen, is based on a patient and independent study of the text. As regards commentators he wisely rejects the authority of Chu Hsi and took for his guidance the latest and best commentary (王陽明) which is based on the views of the most ancient commentator of Mencius, viz. Chiao K'i. Referring to this work, Dr. Legge himself, in his Prolegomena to his edition of Mencius (p. 9), says "I must regret that I was not earlier acquainted with it." All the quotations which Mr. Faber adduces from Mencius are translated with manifest independence of Dr. Legge's version. There is indeed a considerable difference between the two versions running through the whole, and this is not only the result of the preference given to different native commentators, but has its root much deeper. Dr. Legge and Mr. Faber follow each a different principle of translating, and assume each a different mental attitude towards Mencius. Legge translates freely, popularizing and thereby unconsciously flattening down the sense of the original. Faber translates literally, philosophically colouring and thereby unconsciously deepening the sense of the original. Legge takes practical, prosy common sense for his guide. Faber follows the intuitive instinct of a philosopher. Legge assumes towards Mencius the attitude of an impartial, cool and thereby somewhat unsympathetic judge. Faber comes forward as a favourably-inclined interpreter and lenient critic and occasionally even as a warm advocate of Mencius. These remarks explain the harsh opinion which Mr. Faber (Preface, p. VI.) pronounces on Dr. Legge's treatment of Mencius, when he accuses Dr. Legge of having "kein philosophisches Verständnis für den Autor."

The most valuable feature of Mr. Faber's work is no doubt the minute and lucid classification comprehending the whole of Mencius' ethical-political and religious doctrines in a complete system, where without force or constraint all tenets of Mencius fall into natural groups, subdivided according to their peculiar characteristics, and bringing into a focus all the scattered rays of Mencius' rich and varied intellect. Those who have personally felt the difficulties caused by that universal defect of Chinese philosophers, the want of systematic arrangement, will understand what we mean by saying that the first seventeen pages of Mr. Faber's work, containing the skeleton index to his systematic classification of the doctrines of Mencius, are in themselves a most valuable and useful manual.

The body of the book consists in a methodical exposition of the whole system of Mencius' philosophy, elucidated by quotations directly and literally translated from the original, which are followed by brief, sententious notes. The object of these notes is partly to explain, or justify, or criticize as occasion requires the views of Mencius, partly to compare the tenets of Mencius and Confucianism in general with the doctrines of Christianity
